GOOD EFFECT OF A SPEECH BY JOHN DILLON.

Prof. Bryce Making War on Deer Forests — Rascality of Russian Police — La Grippe in Australia—Russian Peasants Eating Their Dogs.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Prof. Bryce, M.P., has made a sensation in Scotland by his advocacy of a special tax on the owners of deer forests on the ground that the forests are a luxury of the wealthiest class and can well bear the burden. Prof. Bryce also advocated the enactment of a law prohibiting the creation of new deer forests.

THE BEAUTIFUL RUSSIAN POLICE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 20.—M. Glazounouff, the Russian musical composer, in whose house was found a trunk containing revolutionary pamphlets, the trunk having been left there by a female Nihilist, has been ordered to quit Russia. This means a loss of 15,000 roubles to Glazounoff, that being the amount of bail which he placed in the hands of the police when first accused in connection with the matter. Nobody seems to doubt the composer's innocence, and it is believed that he was sent out of the country so that the police might keep the bail he had deposited.

LA GRIPPE IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 20.—An epidemic of influenza, said to be similar to that which prevailed recently in Europe and America, is prevalent in Victoria and New South Wales, and has prostrated many people of all classes. The deaths are not numerous as compared with the number of the afflicted.

EATING DOGS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 20.—Advices from Southeastern Russia state that extraordinary measures are being taken everywhere by the local authorities to deal with the distress, and that systematic personal application is being made to all the well to-do for aid. The appeals do not bring in as much as was hoped, on account of the stagnant condition of trade. From the district of Jetirchef comes a peculiar story to the effect that the dogs of that region, which are noted for sagacity, and which are used largely for carrying burdens and other domestic duties by the peasantry, have nearly all disappeared, having been killed by their owners and others for food.

HUNGARIAN IRRECONCILABLES.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—In incident is reported from Buda-Pesth which illustrates the bitterness which remains in the Hungarian heart regarding the events of 1848 and the burning desire for revenge on Russia, which then intervened to quench the revolution in Hungary. The Hungarian Minister of Public Instruction, Count Csaky, has been compelled by popular pressure to rebuke and suspend one Lutter, the head of the State Gymnasium at Buda, because he had forbidden boys at his school to take part in celebrating October 6th, the anniversary of the day in 1848, when 13 generals of the Hungarian army who surrendered to the Russian Marshal Paskevitch, were cruelly hanged. The master had not acted from any unpatriotic motive, but popular feeling was greatly aroused against him and the Government was compelled to punish him.

DILLON AND PARNELL.

Mr. John Dillon's speech eulogising Parnell has considerably softened the feelings of the Parnellites towards him; especially as it was coupled with a repudiation of the attacks in the Dublin Catholic on Parnell's memory. There is now believed to be a possibility of conciliation under Mr. Dillon. No one doubts the truth of Mr. Dillon's statement that he loved Parnell, and there is only one speech of Mr. Dillon's on record in which he antagonised Parnell strongly, and that was on the subject of the Paris fund, a few days before Parnell's death. Before going to jail Mr. Dillon had been careful to keep a moderate course. He hoped that dissension would come to an end before his release. Upon being liberated he threw his lot in with the McCarthyites, but he never used personally abusive terms regarding Parnell, and the utmost charged against him by the Parnellites is that when an offensive term was used in his presence he failed to rebuke it. There is no proof that he heard it, and if he did he probably thought it best to ignore it. Mr. Dillon is unpoubtedly considered by the Tories the strongest man im the two factions and the most positive and commanding character.

BAIE DES CHALEURS.

Opening of the Investigation by the Commission at Quebec.

QUEBEC, Oct. 14.—The Royal Commission began work this morning. Among those present were Hon. Mr. Mercier, Ernest Pacaud, the three Langeliers, Tarte, Hon. D. A. Ross, Hon. Geo. Irvine, J. S. Hall and J. LeBlanc, members of the Legislature, W. A. Cook and L. P. Pelletier. Judge Jette stated that he expressed his colleagues and his own opinion, that they enter into business without any party inclinations, the whole proceedings to be carried on most scrupulously as the honor and integrity of the three judges are at stake. The request of Cook, Hall and Casgrain to represent the public was rejected. The commission will conduct the proceedings, and any lawyers, electors, or memoers of Parliament may examine the witnesses provided the bench gives its sanction.

Gustave Grenier, clerk of the council, was sworn as a witness and examined as to the order-in-council respecting the subsidy to the road.

At the afternoon sitting of the commission, Armstrong, contractor, testified that Pacaud, chief editor of L'Electeur, the Government paper, arranged the whole affair of the subsidy with the Government. He thought that $75,000 would be sufficient reward for Pacaud's service toward the new syndicate, but Pacaud hinted that he would want $100,000. Armstrong did not think it improper to give such a large sum, as he thought it would advance the public interest as well as his own. Armstrong himself suggested that Pacaud act as his agent and receive pay for it. He understood the money was to go to Pacaud for his own use.

QUEBEC, Oct. 15.—The royal commission this morning consented to Beique and Amyot appearing as representatives of the Ministers, not as a government but as private parties. Objection by Irvine as to the jurisdiction of the commissioners, which would have burked the investigation, was overruled. Contractor Armstrong was re-examined. He now declares that he gave Pacaud $100,000 in L'Electeur office at Pacaud's request. Langelier was also there.

Stage Careers Cut Short.

CLARKSBURG, W.Va., Oct. 20.—Two sixteen-year old girls, Miss Pinkie Gowdie, daughter of C. H. Gowdie, a prominent citizen of Grafton, and Miss Cora Boyce, daughter of a well known railway man of Keiser, were arrested as runaways upon the arrival of the eastern train here yesterday afternoon. Although they had plenty of money they had walked four miles from Grafton and boarded the train at a way station. They intended to stay here over night and take the early morning express for Cumberland, where they were to join an opera company in which they had secured an engagement. They were handsomely dressed and really beautiful girls, and are well known in social circles. They were sent back home last night. Their capture caused them to shed some unavailing tears.

The Lights Went Out.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 20.—There is much talk in the exclusive suburb of Wyoming over a queer affair which occured there Sunday night. In the midst of a sermon the Rev. Dr. J. L. Taylor, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was handed a message announcing the death of the Rev. Dr. Huston, the recent pastor of the church, who was visiting in the South on account of ill-health. Dr. Taylor read the message to the congregation. He was just speaking the last word when every light in the church went out. There was much excitement, and several ladies fainted. Other lights were procured, but the situation was such that Dr. Taylor dismissed the congregation.

Chinese Driven Out.

DALANO, Cala., Oct. 19.—About four months ago the Chinese section men at this place struck for higher wages, which were refused them. Their places were immediately filled with white laborers from this station, who have continued to discharge the duties since that time. On Saturday evening word was received that Mongolians would take the places of the white laborers. The people became indignant over the matter. Laborers called on the Chinese last night between 10 and 11 o'clock, told them to take their baggage and leave town, which they did at once without further ceremony. If the Mongolians should return it is feared there will be trouble.

California Stages Robbed.

MARYSVILLE, Cala., Oct. 20.—Following the robbery of the Redding and Weaverville stage last night at about 7 o'clock by one masked man, about nine miles out of this city at 9 o'clock, the Redding and Alturas stage was stopped and robbed about 12 miles from town by two masked men. The Wells Fargo & Company's box and the mail were taken, and the driver was also made to give up what spare cash he possessed. He had about $50 on his person, which he was taking to a merchant at Round Mountain for change. No clue to the robbers so far. Loss unknown.

A Real Duel on the Stage.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Earl Dorsey and William Statler, two well-known society young men of Moundsville, fought a duel on the Opera House stage in that city. The Thomas Osborne Company was playing there the last three nights of last week, and the young men quarrelled over a girl in the troupe. They met behind the scenes at rehearsal and the quarrel was resumed. The swords used in a part of the play were on the stage, and each man seized one. A hot fight ensued, lasting five minutes, at the end of which time Statler was stabbed in the neck, inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound.

Whittier Very Ill.

AMESBURY, Mass., Oct. 19.—John Greenleaf Whittier, the famous Quaker poet, is so ill that even his closest friends were debarred from seeing him yesterday on the order of his physicians. Mr. Whittier has been ill for a long time, but was recovering. On Wednesday he walked out of doors for the first time in many weeks. He caught a severe cold, which has settled on his lungs, and he is again confined to his room.

Bitten by a Spider.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Gustave Saltzmusical critic of the New York Staats Zeitung, was recently bitten by a spider and died this morning. Death is said to be due to pneumonia and heart failure, the physicians, Doctors Balzer and Jacobi, declaring that blood poisoning was not the cause of the fatal result. They admit, however, that the operation performed upon him had a tendency to weaken Stein.

Talmage's Tabernacle Broken Into.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 19.—The Tabernacle, Dr. Talmage's church, was feloniously entered last night by forcing a side window overlooking a vacant lot. An overcoat belonging to the sexton was stolen. The thieves evidently became frightened by some noise, as they left several pieces of silverware rolled up in a piano cover ready for removal.

SPENCER ARCADE FIRE.

DISCOVERED TO HAVE BEEN AN INCENDIARY ONE.

Newcome Musgrave Confesses to Having Started Three Fires in Spencer's Building—He Wanted a Few Days Off From School—His Statement of the Matter.

Since the fire in Spencer's Arcade on the 9th instant, the cause of the blaze has been a mystery to the police and others interested. The circumstances pointed strongly to incendiarism, but no direct proofs were forthcoming. An officer was set to watch, however, and every effort made to trace the origin of the fire.

This morning Chief Deasy picked up a thread which promised to lead to a solution of the mystery, and after following it for a few minutes found he was in possession of sufficient facts to throw suspicion on a scholar who attends Rev. J. Wastie Green's school, which is situated on the same flat as that where the fire originated.

Chief Deasy at once reported what he knew to Supt. Sheppard of the city police, who took up the clue and soon found enough evidence to warrant the bringing up for examination of the 12-year-old son of Mr. Edward Musgrave, of Salt Spring Island. Sergeant Devin accordingly visited the school room at about 11 o'clock this morning and took the lad to Supt. Sheppard's office, where in the presence of Police Magistrate Belyea, Supt. Sheppard and one or two interested parties, he made a statement in substance as follows:

I am nearly 13 years old. I remember the fire on Friday the 9th at noon. I do not know how it came to start. Some of the boys saw the smoke, an alarm was given and the firemen came. About the are on the shelves on Saturday, it was put out by two men. I don't known who they were. The little fire in the hall was put out by Mr. Green. I never told him I lit it, but I did. I brought some coal oil from the house in a beer bottle; I got it from the Chinaman. This oil I sprinkled on the floor and set light to it.

Supt. Sheppard—Did you not light the fire on Friday which burnt so much?

Yes sir, I did. I brought a bottle of coal oil from the house the day before. It was an empty claret bottle. I put the oil in. I told Cyril Ward and Alex. Gillespie that I was going to set the place on fire. They told me I might get found out, but I said if I did I would suffer the consequences. I wanted to get a holiday from school. After the fire the other boys seemed glad because they had a holiday. The little fire on the floor I set with coal oil which I brought from the house in an empty medicine bottle.

Supt. Sheppard—Then you brought three bottles of oil to the school altogether?

Yes, sir.

Mr. Belyea—Do you think Mr. Green knew that you set the fires?

I think the boys told him, for he locked me in my room yesterday. I got out, though, and went up the line to Duncan's station on the train, but was sent back.

Mr. Belyea—What made you light the fires?

I wanted to get a holiday.

Supt. Sheppard—Did you ever light any other fires.

No, sir.

Mr. Green had already sent for the boy's elder brother, who came down today by the train. Mr. Green deeply deplores the circumstances, and had the case been less serious it would probably have never been made public. However, knowing the grave nature of the charge, he at once gave all the information possible to enable a mystery to be cleared up.

The parents of the foolish lad will be pained beyond expression on account of the serious results of his childish and mischievous actions. It is thought by many that the lad must have a mania for setting fires. The boy seems very bright and intelligent for his years, and is evidently aware that he is in a bad fix.

The Electrocution Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—In the Supreme Court of the United States today Justice Field announced descriptions court advancing cases of New York murderers Nicola Trezza and James McElvane for argument on the first Monday in December, and also advancing for argument immediately following the cases of Fielden and Shwab, the Chicago anarchists, undergoing sentences of life imprisonment in Joliet penitentiary. The cases of Trezza and McElvane involve the constitutionality of the electrocution law, the principal contention of the defendants being that at part of the law forbidding the publication by newspapers of details of executions by electricity is against a direct provision of the constitution respecting the liberty of the press.

The New South Wales Crisis.

SIDNEY, N.S.W., Oct. 19.—Sir Henry Parkes, Premier of New South Wales, has resigned in consequence of the defeat of the Government on Thursday last, when it opposed a motion for a return of the bill regulating the mining laws to the committee which had considered it, in order that the eight hour law clause might be eliminated. The House then adjourned with the understanding that the Cabinet would resign. Sir Henry was opposed to the eight-hour provision in the bill, but the other members of the Cabinet were in favor of the clause. It is again said that Sir Henry Parkes, owing to his advanced age, will retire permanently to private life.

Westminster's Lively Council.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 20.—Excitement ran high at the council meeting last night. Ald. Scoullar and the Mayor had a pitched battle, both yelling at the top of their voices, trying to talk each other down. The Mayor threatened to have Ald. Scoullar put out. Mr. Scoullar said there were not enough men in the house to do it and he defied the Mayor. The Alderman talked on and had the last word. The fighting spirit seemed to be in all the aldermen, as the meeting was largely taken up with lively tiffs.

CAPTURED ON SAN JUAN.

The Wolcott Makes a Raid on Alleged Smugglers.

SEATTLE, Oct. 19.—The revenue cutter Wolcott arrived in port yesterday, and from those on board it was learned that 11 smugglers and the sloop Annie had been captured on Saturday night by the officers of the vessel, assisted by United States customs officials. The capture was made in the San Juan archipelago. Deputy United States Marshal J. H. Boyce, of Tacoma, and C. B. Fox and George W. Dillon, special inspectors of customs, were in charge of the raiding party. The sloop Annie which was seized was found lying at anchor near Roche Harbor, and was, on inspection, found to have on board a quantity of whiskey. It has long been known that smuggling has been practiced on a large scale by individuals making their headquarters in the obscure places of the San Juan group, but how to make a successful raid has been a puzzling proposition to the customs officers. This fact has been a source of great annoyance to the customs officers, and recently C. B. Fox and George W. Dillon, special agents, were detailed to keep a constant watch over certain suspected localities and parties with a view to capturing and convicting the smugglers.

After careful work the officers claim to have gathered sufficient evidence to feel warranted in making the arrest. The co-operation of the officers of the Wolcott and Marshal Boyce was secured. In order to prevent the frustration of the well-laid plans the officers proceeded under cover of night in the execution of their work. The first place the steamer touched was near Mosquito Pass, where the two Lightheart brothers were arrested. From there other points were visited and the following arrests were made: M. J. Ford, Thos. Jones, M. V. Allen, of Ellensburg; Isaac Landreth, Cyrus Jones, Richard Knight, John Gross, Fred Lightheart, Alex. Lightheart, George Lawson of San Juan county. It is alleged by the officers who made the arrest that Isaac Landreth is the leading spirit among the San Juan smugglers. Little or no trouble was experienced in making the arrests.

After the arrests were made the Wolcott headed for Tacoma, and delivered the prisoners to United States Marshal Brown. Capt. Tozier was seen on board the Wolcott and he seemed greatly pleased over the capture of the smugglers. He recounted the fact that he was certain that the locality where the arrests had been made has long been a nest for smugglers. "We have had these parties under surveillance for some little time," he said, "but it was not thought safe to take action sooner on account of insufficient evidence. We are not sure of conviction now, but we felt that we had all the evidence necessary." Capt. Tozier further states that the Wolcott was kept constantly busy patrolling up and down the Sound, but the large territory to be covered with but one vessel rendered it impossible to do the thorough work that he would like to.

"We are anxiously awaiting," he said, "the completion of new boats under construction, and to be used on the Sound in the revenue service, and expect that with the addition of these much more efficient service can be rendered. The boats will be the very best that material and workmanship can make. Each boat will be 50 feet in length, built of steel, and will be capable of steaming about 15 statute miles per hour in smooth water. The armament will consist of Hotchkiss rapid firing guns, capable of throwing an 18-inch shell, and the boats will be equipped in the best possible manner for service, and will be placed under the supervision of some one who will place them where they will do the most good."

Rev. Sam Small Arrested.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Sun's Boston, Mass., special says:—The Rev. Sam Small was arrested in this city on Monday on a charge of obtaining $1000 by false pretences made by the Rev. H. W. Monroe, an Episcopalian clergyman at Newton, Lower Falls. Mr. Small has been stopping in this state for the past few weeks in the interests of the prohibition ticket. Secretary Meriden, of the Prohibitory State Committee, went bail for him, and he has been stumping the state ever since.

It is said that the transaction which resulted in the arrest of Mr. Small was agreed upon in August, 1890, when Mr. Small was president of Olden university. It is alleged that Mr. Small induced the Rev. Mr. Monroe to pay $1000 for a lot of land which he claimed was worth that sum. The land belonged to the university, and it is alleged that the university demanded only $500 for it, and that Mr. Small made $500 by this transaction. When Mr. Monroe heard of this, he demanded the return of his money. As it was not forthcoming, he caused the arrest of Mr. Small.

THE SEIZED SEALERS.

Guns and Ammunition of the Schooner E. B. Marvin Given up.

Touching the case of the sealing schooner E. B. Marvin, which was released by Admiral Hotham through Collector Milne, her guns, ammunition and three sealskins will be handed over to Collector Milne at once by the naval authorities, to be delivered up to the owners.

It is said that the owners of the Marvin will now ask that the vessel be purged from the imputation conveyed in the latter part of Admiral Hotham's letter of yesterday that the ship and owners had incurred the penalty of a fine and imprisonment.

Collector Milne has been very painstaking and thorough in this matter and the results thus far are largely due to his attitude in the case.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

CHAPLEAU WILL CERTAINLY GO ON STRIKE

If He Does Not Get the Railways and Canals Portfolio—Premier Abbott's Poor Progress in Reconstructing the Cabinet.

From Our Own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—Cabinet making is the one question which overshadows all others for the present time at the Capital. That Mr. Abbott has before him a task such as no First Minister ever had before, is acknowledged by everybody who has the slightest knowledge of the political situation. Indeed, to give a Cabinet to the country such as all eyes are looking for, would mean that with the exception of one or two Ministers at most, all would be sent adrift to look for that kind of employment for which they are suited. As members of a Cabinet they are mighty poor timber. Those who have any ability to discharge the duties that devolve upon them in the Cabinet are under a cloud or otherwise incapacitated—if we except Sir John Thompson. The Minister of Justice possesses all the qualifications essential to a good statesman, but the part he played in whitewashing Sir Hector Langevin and Mr. Cochrane has reduced his popularity greatly. With his Conservative friends it may have illustrated to them that he is a good party man and can stretch a point to further the party's interests.

THE ROCK AHEAD.

The rock on which the Tory ship is to strike first, and which is almost certain to founder it, is the Secretary of State. To Sir John Macdonald Mr. Chapleau has been a great source of trouble ever since he came into the Cabinet. He was not long in the Ministry when a feud took place between himself and Sir Charles Tupper. It took all the time of the late Premier to prevent an open rupture. One session the Secretary of State devoted to travel, because he would not sit in the same house with Tupper, then Minister of Railways and Canals. The press was outspoken in its remarks regarding the estrangement between the two. To show the wonderful capacity of the late leader of the Tory party it may be said that one or two days before prorogation of the session mentioned, Mr. Chapleau returned to the city and amidst cheers from the Government side of the House Mr. Chapleau was introduced by Sir John and Mr. Tupper. Then followed the denunciation by the organs of all who said that Mr. Chapleau and Mr. Tupper were not the best of friends. But there was only one Sir John, and he alone was capable of handling to advantage the classes of men whom he selected as colleagues. Fancy the fiery Chapleau and the belligerent Tupper playing the part to the dictatim of the Old Man. Troubles of this kind were a source of pleasure to the Premier once they were got over. But will Mr. Abbott be able to perform such feats with the same material? No one who has studied the man and the elements which surround him can believe that he will be successful in doing so.

A CASE IN POINT.

Take the case of Mr. Chapleau and the Railways Department. It is a well known fact that while Sir John Macdonald was holding out the prospect to the Secretary of State of getting a more important department in the near future he always contrived something as an excuse which prevented him carrying out this arrangement. The truth is Sir John knew Mr. Chapleau too well to place him at the head of an important money-spending department. To prevent the Secretary of State getting it after the death of the Hon. J. H. Pope Sir John himself took hold of the Department, although everybody knew he was unequal to the duties, owing to his declining years. All the same he held out favorable prospects to Mr. Chapleau of his becoming at an early day the Minister of Railways and Canals. Indeed, Mr. Chapleau says that he had the promise of the Premier to get this portfolio, and we have no reason to misbelieve him, more especially as the promise was said to be made in the presence of witnesses. Be that as it may, there is little doubt but the present Premier had to give this promise before Mr. Chapleau consented to remain in the Cabinet after the Old Man's death. This, too, is corroborated by Mr. Chapleau himself. Sir John Thompson and Senator Drummond, when the Secretary of State was lying at his home with a sprained ankle, only got the promise of Mr. Chapleau to remain where he was until the close of the session, and when the work of reconstruction came on during the recess his claims were to be recognized. Before leaving at the end of the session, the Ontario Tories of the Clarke Wallace type waited on Mr. Abbott and pressed upon him the advisability of not placing a French-Canadian at the head of the Department of Railways and Canals. It was argued that Sir Hector Langevin and Mr. Chapleau were responsible for all the evils that befel the party, and that none of their race should longer control the two spending departments of the Government—the Railways and the Public Works. This course Mr. Abbott must pursue or his government was doomed. Again, if Mr. Chapleau holds out and demands his pound of flesh or resigns, then he can pull the whole fabric down about the ears of the Premier. That much is certain. Mr. Chapleau without a doubt holds the key to the whole situation. He may be corrupt and a failure as an administrator, as he certainly is, yet he is the uncrowned king of the Tory party in Quebec. The party managers may read him out of the ranks if they choose, but they cannot euchre him out of the constituencies which he controls, and which will follow him no matter which side of the House he sits on. Until this one question has been disposed of Mr. Abbott has postponed the work of forming a new Cabinet. In the meantime the Chapleau organs are shouting "no surrender." To do so, they say, under the present circumstances would be an admission that Mr. Chapleau is all and more than the Opposition painted him during last session of Parliament. The result in the end will be defeat for the administration, no matter what course the Secretary of State may take. The time is not far distant when the leader of the French-Canadians and of the Liberals of the Dominion will be at the head of the party in power.

CIVIL SERVICE PICNIC.

An employee of the civil service writes the Free Press to-day in sarcastic vein that the temporary clerks in the various departments propose holding a monster picnic for which they are arranging an elaborate programme, to take place in the near future in Lansdowne Park. Owing to the mandate lately proclaimed by the Government which specifies prolonged hours of labor for these clerks and deprives them of their usual holidays as well as going out to luncheon and other privileges, it may be necessary to hold the demonstration on Sunday. This would prevent a reduction of their limited salaries through an encroachment upon the six working days of the week. They humbly solicit the patronage of a sympathizing public in their first endeavor to obtain some little recreation in common with other less persecuted mortals. The temporary clerks should bear their affliction with becoming fortitude, knowing that while they are innocent of wrong doing themselves, the members of the Government are taking this means of illustrating to an indignant community how anxious they are to purify the whole administration. To save their own heads they will use the guillotine to their subordinates. SLABTOWN.

Recent Events Reported From the Eastern Provinces.

Postmaster-General Haggart has gone home for a few days' holidays.

The shipments of phosphate from Ottawa county this year are fully fifty per cent less. than last year.

The loss by fire in Skinner & Co.'s harness factory in Gananoque is placed at $24,000. Insurance $21,000.

M. P. McHugh, Q. C., Windsor, Ont., has been appointed Judge of the County Court of Essex and Local Judge of the High Court of Justice,

Deputy Minister of Justice Sedgewick, and Mr. Todd, Secretary of the Privileges committee, have gone to Quebec to answer subpœnas to give evidence in the Connolly-McGreevy conspiracy trial.

Small-pox is spreading in Northern Brunswick, on the Quebec boundary. The second case has broken out at Dalhousie and at St. Moise there are two cases. The provincial board of health has taken action.

James Lindsay was shot at Kingston by a carter named Paddon and seriously injured. Paddon's act was the result of a quarrel which arose over an attempt of Lindsay to kick the other's dog, which was chasing some chickens belonging to Lindsay.

The statement is made that all the members of the Cabinet have placed their resignations in the hands of Premier Abbott, for his acceptance or declination, according to his view of the exigencies of the situation. This enables him to act freely upon his individual judgment.

A London cablegram says the fund for providing a memorial to the late Sir John Macdonald in St. Paul's Cathedral amounts now to about £280. The subscribers include Lords Rosebery, Derby, Aberdeen, Kimberly, Knutsford, Cranbrook, Dufferin, Lansdowne and Brassey, the Duke of Cambridge, Joseph Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour.

Hannah Short, a 20 year old daughter of John Short, of Oshawa, was fatally shot by Willie Coldy, aged 14, at the residence of Coldy, where she dropped in to spend a few minutes. The young woman had been teasing the lad, which so provoked him that he took down a shot gun and discharged it into her neck. It is said the boy was unaware the gun was loaded.

A banquet has been tendered to the Hon. Wilfred Laurier by the French-Canadians of New England. It was organized by the Lafayette Club, Cambridge, and St. Jean Baptiste Society, Boston. The date fixed is Tuesday, 17th November, in the Hotel Vendome, Boston. Governor Russell and Mayor O'Brien will attend. An excursion from Montreal is being arranged for.

John Herbert Beatty, of Toronto, one of the best known men in Ontario, a prominent Conservative and an intimate friend of the late Dominion Premier, died on Saturday night, after ten days' illness, the result of a stroke of apoplexy. Of late years Mr. Beatty has been engaged in selling railway supplies, especially cars and engines for construction service, in the Eastern Provinces and British Columbia.

Shippers are complaining bitterly of lower waters in the Lachine canals. Not for eighteen years has the water of the St. Lawrence been so low as during the past week. Owing to the great difficulty in the navigation of the canals many barges of grain and coal have been obliged to lay up at Prescott. Twenty-five vessels are now there awaiting a chance to get down safely. The low water is due to the fact that there has been but little rain during the past six weeks.

Sir Joseph Hickson arrived home recently from England greatly improved in health. Speaking of Grand Trunk prospects and the next report Sir Joseph says: "I think the report should be satisfactory to the proprietors. It will doubtless be based upon the actual circumstances of the company. These, with an abundant harvest in the States and Canada, of which the Grand Trunk will carry a large portion, should be favorable. Of course in a company with so many proprietors there may be a difference of opinion as to the position of the company. Some may have bought with over eagerness, expecting immediate returns. Then again, it is impossible on the other side to understand the actual situation here with respect to every operation of the company. I see no reason, however, why the proprietors should not sustain the directors at the next annual meeting."

Mrs. Parnell.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Parnell, widow of C. S. Parnell, continues in a very weak and precarious condition. She is unable to sleep without drugs, and cannot partake of any solid food. A physician and Mrs. Parnell's eldest daughter are in constant attendance upon her.

The Storm in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Oct. 19.—Severe weather continues in the Irish sea. The Dublin mail packet, which left Holyhead last evening, arrived at Kingston five hours late. She was compelled to pass through tremendous seas during most of the voyage. The furious waves smashed a number of the paddles and carried away the wheelhouse, steering wheel and a portion of the bridge. The passengers were in great fear during the stormy passage, and unanimously declare their experience to have been a most awful one. Dispatches from the west of Ireland state that the hurricane which prevailed there was the worst known in that part of the country for the past 20 years. The Shannon overflowed its banks, submerging a large area of land in the vicinity and causing the drowning of cattle and sheep. Several houses, barns and other buildings were also destroyed. At Queenstown the gale is raging with extraordinary violence. Thirty small boats have been wrecked and a large amount of property destroyed by winds and waves. A life boat, in attempting to put out to the relief of imperilled people, was badly damaged. The sea entered and flooded many parts of Youghal, and the Blackwater, to add to the difficulties and dangers of the situation, has overflowed its banks, causing much damage to property and the loss of many head of sheep and cattle.

Escaped From Jail.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 19.—Some time Saturday night eight prisoners confined in the Bowie County, Texas, jail at Ball, the county seat, succeeded in breaking through the wooden wall and escaping. Among them are Robt. Scott and Spencer Miles, both self-convicted murderers. The other prisoners who escaped were in for minor offences, with the exception of Bud Gibson, (colored) recently sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. He walked 20 miles to this point, hunted up the sheriff, surrendered himself and notified him of the escape of the others. Officers are out, and little doubt is entertained that all the parties will be captured.

Mrs. Drexel's Benevolence.

GUTHRIE, Oklahoma, Oct. 19.—The Catholic Bishop of Oklahoma has just received a communication from Mrs. J. A. Drexel, of Philadelphia, offering to pay the tuition of fifty Indian children at the Catholic college, of Purcell. She also said that as soon as she can obtain the necessary land from the Government she will donate $50,000 towards schools and churches in the Kiow, Commanche and Apache reservations for the education of their children.

Editor Sleicher.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Hon. Jno. A. Sleicher has been appointed editor-in-chief of the Mail and Express to succeed the late Major J. M. Bundy. Mr. Sleicher retires from the editorship of Frank Leslie's Weekly.

WOMAN WEAK AND FRAIL!

A Miserable Existence!

GIVE HEED TO THE WARNING!

Life Can Be Made Joyous!

Fainting, or syncope, as it is professionally called, very often attacks the individual without warning, though at other times, and in those subject to these distressing symptoms, fainting is preceded by well-defined sensations, such as a feeling of distress, languour and sickness; the sight becomes dim, and the eyes appear covered by a film; a dark circle appear round the orbits; a buzzing or low singing noise is heard in the ears; the face and lips are pale; a cold perspiration breaks out over the skin; the pulse sinks to a mere flutter and finally ceases; the body totters and, unless upheld, falls to the ground. This state lasts from five minutes to half an hour, and, when prolonged, it may terminate in epilepsy or convulsions.

The causes that predispose to faintings are an intensely nervous state of the system, a delicate constitution, and extreme debility from whatever cause produced. Females are more subject to fainting than males, hence amongst young girls and women we find the wakeful, the sleepless, the excited, the irritable and morbidly inclined.

The nervous, debilitated, sleepless and irritable woman leads a terribly miserable life. She is a burden to herself and a great care to her friends; with here life is uncertain, and the light of the lamp may go out at any time. She is aware of this and her friends know it, yet in many cases there is no sure and sensible effort put forth to change existing circumstances.

The family physician is consulted, and views with apparent gravity the situation and a small measure of assistance is temporarily given, but no permanent cure is effected.

The foundation for a perfect cure must be commenced by strengthening the body. Every nerve and muscle must be strengthened, the blood increased, circulation properly regulated, and a healthy appetite and good digestion produced. Then, and only then, will sleeplessness, excitement, irritability and morbidness be banished.

Experience for some years past has clearly demonstrated the fact, that there exists but one true and reliable remedy for this class of sufferers. It is admitted by those who know best that Paine's Celery Compound is the great agent for all who are subject to weakness and fainting spells. It quickly builds up the whole body, restores the whole motive power that the healthy body should possess; it stimulates every organ of nutrition, invigorates the nervous system, and gives strength to the exhausted and waning powers of life.

No system of medical treatment can equal the effects produced by Paine's Celery Compound. The fact is well known to physicians who are now successfully prescribing it. No other medicine in existenence is now so popular with the women of Canada, and a trial is urged in every case of bodily weakness, nervousness and sleeplessness.

Poisoned Herself.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Florence Foreman, a young society woman, poisoned herself last night and was found dead in bed this morning. She was the wife of Jas. C. Foreman, was aged 23 years, and has been married about two years. Some months ago she was sick, and the illness affected her mind. While out walking yesterday she eluded the nurse who had been entrusted to watch her, and bought 50 cents worth of strychnine, explaining that she wanted to kill rats. Last night after going to bed she swallowed the poison. Mrs. Foreman was the daughter of Mr. John Hodges, a leading citizen, and she was very handsome.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

There settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the resources and development of that country. This man is no other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I had been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaint for some time, and had used many remedies without any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing through a friend, of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensation while urinating, and all affections of the kidney or urinary organs of either sex.

THE SEIZED SEALERS.

The seizure of the schooner Otto in Behring Sea seems to have been a remarkable piece of work, such as might have been expected in the territories of the Czar. In the New York Herald appears the following description of the event from Mr. F. King-Hall, the correspondent of that paper, who was here a few days ago:—

Seal poacher Otto, on board of which I had been for over two months, was captured on Monday, September 21, by United States steamer Mohican in sight of an English cruiser. We were in company of another sealer—Oscar and Hattie. She ran one way and we the other. After an exciting chase of an hour and a quarter a blank charge fired by the Mohican brought us to. We were boarded by a boat from the Mohican with two officers, who examined our papers and indorsed the registry, which was found irregular, having the master's and owner's names incorrect. Upon Ensign Beale reporting the same to Captain Cotton the latter seized the Otto and put a prize crew, with Ensign McDonald in charge, on board, with orders to take the Otto to Ounalaska to be turned over and dealt with by the British authorities.

I was transferred by Captain Cotton's permission to the Mohican. We at once went in pursuit of the Oscar and Hattie, now ten miles off. We chased her out of the sea, but she was saved by the darkness, and run into land when we were within two miles of her. The captain of the Otto had never been officially warned, but she was seized by Captain Cotton, of the Mohican, at the request of Commander Turner, of H. M. S. Nymphe, the senior British naval officer, who informed Captain Cotton, as senior American officer, that before the Nymphe left Esquimalt he (Turner) had requested the Collector of Customs of Victoria to warn the Otto, then lying in port and about to sail to Behring.

Commander Turner said he considered her a warned vessel and requested Capt. Cotton as senior American officer, to have her seized wherever seen. Capt. Reilly, the master of the Otto, says he was never warned by Collector Milne, of Victoria, and Lieut. Cately, commanding H.M.S. Pheasant, who took the order to Collector Milne, says the latter told him the Otto was going cod-fishing, not sealing. In spite of this the Otto's clearance papers are for Behring Sea for hunting, signed by Milne. He must either have been grossly careless or wilfully deceived Lieutenant Cately.

On the morning of Sept. 21 the Mohican overtook the Otto and towed her into Ounalaska, where she was handed over to Lieut. Cately, of the Pheasant, as the only British officer present. He took all her papers away and gave her orders to proceed to Victoria to be dealt with.

From reading this report it would appear as though American and British officers had conjured up a number of specious reasons for the seizure of the vessel, in the hope that if one fell through another might serve their purpose. If the commander of the Mohican, as first alleged, arrested the schooner for an apparent irregularity in her papers, he committed a breach of international law, and should have been rebuked for his action. Suppose some American vessel were treated in a similar manner by a foreign commander, what a howl there would be about the high-handed outrage.

Then the ground is changed, and it is alleged that the seizure was made by Captain Cotton at the request of Commander Turner, who "considered her a warned vessel," because he had asked Collector Milne to warn her against going to the Sea before she left Victoria. It is admitted, nevertheless, that the vessel was not "officially warned," and everybody knows that she could not have been so warned, since she left before the official proclamation arrived here. Then we have a story about Collector Milne having told Lieut. Cately that the Otto was going codfishing, while he had actually cleared her for hunting in Behring Sea. Those who know Collector Milne and have watched his course in connection with Behring Sea matters will at once see how stupid a story this is. But to entirely discredit it we have the explicit statement of Collector Milne that neither Commander Turner nor Lieutenant Headley (not Cately) requested him to warn the Otto or spoke to him on the subject.

Taking all the circumstances into account, there appears to have been no good and sufficient reason for seizing the Otto, a conclusion which is further confirmed by her release without any prosecution. Both in her case and that of the Marvin there was too much the appearance of high-handed oppression. The modus vivendi having been concluded, it was all well enough to enforce it, but why should British officers have gone out of their way to harrass Canadian vessels in order to bolster up the case of the foreigner? Canadians do not relish unjust treatment any more than do Englishmen themselves.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The first election petition to come before a court for trial on its merits was that against Mr. William Mulock, the Liberal member for North York. We are told that the petitioners had no evidence to offer, and that the petition was dismissed with costs. Such will doubtless be the fate of a good many petitions on both sides during the next few weeks.

It seems that the Minister of Justice has at last begun the promised prosecution of boodlers by ordering the arrest of Senecal, the ex-superintendent of the Printing Bureau, on the charge of defrauding the Government. His arrest is said to have been made at Montreal. It is some two weeks now since Sir John Thompson announced that he had authority from the Governor-in-Council to prosecute these men, so it would seem that a lot of preliminary deliberation was necessary.

Dispatches from Ottawa state that neither Liberals nor Conservatives are satisfied with the composition of the commission appointed by the Government to enquire into the state of the civil service. There is no man from Ontario on the commission, all the members except Justice Bardidge and Deputy Minister Courtney being from Quebec. The commission was not a happy idea at the outset, and the choice of commissioners does not seem to have improved the scheme.

At the meeting in favor of political union with the States held at Belle River, in Essex county, last week, the chair was occupied by Patrick Strong, ex-reeve of the township of Rochester, a life-long Conservative. Among the speakers was D. B. Odette, who then made his debut as a political unionist, having hitherto been known as one of the most vigorous workers for the Conservative party in Western Ontario. It is useless, in the face of such facts as these, to say that the political union sentiment is not growing. It is growing, and that directly as a consequence of the bad management of the country's affairs by the Conservative Government. To put a stop to its growth the causes of discontent must be removed by the institution of pure government and the extension of trade facilities. To secure these there must be a change of administration. It is high time for the corruptionists and restrictionists to go.

The lease of the premises now occupied by Smith & Clark's mill, corner Fort and Langley streets, having expired, it has been found necessary to remove the mill to some other point. In consequence of this, steps are being taken towards the erection of a mill near Laing's ways, at James Bay. The new mill will be larger and better fitted than the present one, to keep pace with the steady growing business of the firm. The erection of these mills and factories is the strongest proof of Victoria's steady growth and advancement.

FROM NORTHERN PORTS.

Steamer Barbara Boscowitz Reports Weather North—Last of the Salmon.

Steamer Barbara Boscowitz, Capt. Williams, arrived down from the North this morning with a full cargo and passenger list. Cross, John Briton, J. Lafolley, J. Spencer, Rev. F. L. Stephenson, L. Watson, Williscroft, J. Bowyer.

The freight list comprised some 6,000 cases of salmon, a deck load of piling cedar, and some general freight. The salmon is nearly all down now, it being expected that the Danube will clear it all up on her present trip.

Sloop Kate, of Vancouver, was picked up near Cape Caution in distress, with her crew, Stanley Smith and William Courtney, in a starving condition. They were anchored waiting for favorable weather to take them up the Kemswick River, where they were going prospecting, when the cable parted and they were driven on the rocks.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Damage by a Storm—Trouble Over a Bad Check.

NANAIMO, Oct. 19.—The storm which passed over here yesterday afternoon did considerable damage to gardens, fences, etc., and blocked many of the roads in the suburbs with fallen trees. During the storm a small boat was seen in the harbor in an apparently helpless condition. Campbell and Foremen's launch was sent to its assistance, and found that the trio had lost their oars and were unable to help themselves. Two of the occupants were Mr. and Mrs. Williams of the bank, and all were glad to be rescued from their dangerous predicament. The water at the time was boiling in a very angry mood and without any oars they were at the mercy of the waves.

The up train last night had a narrow escape from being wrecked by striking a fallen tree.

BOGUS CHECKS.

Dr. Herbing, of Vancouver, is in trouble, having been brought from that city on a warrant issued at the request of T. Glaholme, of the firm of A. R. Johnston & Co. The doctor gave a check on the Bank of British Columbia for ten dollars and it was cashed by Glaholm, who upon presenting it at the bank found the doctor had no account there. He corresponded with the doctor, but got no explanation, so he decided to have him arrested. The matter may possibly be settled out of court.

The engine takes up much less room than any other, and is besides much simpler to run. The company will use it to increase their lighting power.

To Protect Chinese Girls.

On Sunday morning and evening the ministers of several churches read among other notices, one calling a meeting of ladies to be held in the Epworth League room of Pandora Avenue Methodist church yesterday afternoon. A large number of ladies assembled at the appointed hour when the object of the meeting was announced. It was to try to stop the importation of Chinese girls for immoral purposes, which the convener of the meeting said was now being done. Two delegates were chosen from the different denominations to wait on Collector Milne and confer with him regarding the matter. He promised to do all he could to prevent a continuance of the traffic.

Charles Wallace's Death.

Chas. Wallace, who came to the Pacific coast from Canada in 1858 and arrived in Victoria nine years later, died at the Jubilee Hospital this morning in an epileptic fit. In early days the deceased was one of the prominent men of Victoria, but being of a too generous disposition he wrecked his fortune. He came here from California to manage the general business carried on by Dickson, Campbell & Company, at the premises where the rice mill now is. He was in business for himself for a short time, and also held a position under the Elliott Government. He married a daughter of the late John Work. After the death of his first wife he married a daughter of the late Mr. Webster, who survives him. He also leaves two daughters and a son. He was 71 years of age. For some time he has been taking care of the books at the Jubilee Hospital.

May Starve Yet.

The Alaska Fur Company's steamer St. Paul has just arrived at San Francisco from the Behring Sea. It was expected that the St. Paul would bring down the men of the Central Alaska Packing Company, but she failed to do so. About 30 of them are left on the beach at Thin Point with only a week's supplies. They were to have been brought down at the close of the season on the steamer Jeanie, but she was already crowded with men and was to take on more at Copper River. She had but two boats, and the Thin Point canning crew declined to take the risk of going in her. Manager Pond, of the Alaska Central Company offered to supply the Jeanie with six large boats, to be left at Copper River, where the Jeanie would get others, but the captain of the steamer refused to take them The Jeanie then left with her 300 fishermen and packers, and the Thin Point men will have to wait until she gets back. She is now on her way north.

The trouble over the failure of the Jeanie to bring down the fishermen from Thin Point will probably result in a law suit against the Pacific Whaling Company. The men were left on the point with only a week's provisions, and are likely to be very short of food before the steamer gets back.

READY FOR BUSINESS.

THE NATIONAL MILLS STARTED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Splendid Samples of Oatmeal Turned Out—The Machines are of the Latest Patterns—How Oatmeal is Made by Modern Machines.

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the 140 horse-power Wheelock engine, built by Goldie & McCulloch, of Galt, Ont., for the National Mills of the Brackman & Ker Milling Company was started, and a few minutes afterwards as fine a sample of oatmeal as yas been turned out on the coast fell into the meal room ready for packing and delivering. Mr. D. R. Ker, vice-president of the company, through whose exertions the mills were built, invited representatives of the press to visit the mill after it had started, and with his usual courtesy spent much time in explaining the working of the many machines used in making oatmeal, rolled oats, pearl barley, split peas, cornmeal, Graham flour, rye flour, buckwheat flour, hominy, pearl wheat and the many other things used in the kitchen, stable and poultry yard.

The first place visited was the boiler and engine-room, where everything is as neat and clean as a new pin. The patent Wheelock engine is a beauty, being much simpler than the old-fashioned engines. It was the first one to be erected in the province. The steel boiler, an extremely large one, was built by the Albion Iron Works. Mr. Heath, the engineer in charge, can well feel proud of his machinery. Stepping from the engine-room to the mill proper the first thing to catch the eye is the wonderful improvement from the old mill at Saanich that for years did service for Messrs. Brackman & Ker. When the company sent East for Mr. Thos. Wallace, the famous millwright, some six months ago, to come here and plan a mill, they had made up their mind to have one that would supply the demand for many years and that could not be beaten in the Northwest. Even to the inexperienced eye it is evident that they have succeeded in having built just exactly what they wanted. Every machine in the building is the latest improvement, to get which the company sent to all parts of the United States and Canada. Mr. Rees, a well-known eastern millwright, put things in order with credit to himself and his employers, and Mr. Quine will take charge as head miller. Mr. W. H. Ker, formerly of the Saanich mills, is manager at the mills.

MAKING OATMEAL.

To one not acquainted with milling it is most interesting to follow the oats from the time they leave the sacks until they are put in bags ready for shipment. When the reader considers that twenty tons of oats are thus consumed in a day, he will readily understand how quickly they must fly around the mill. The oats are first thrown into a large vat, whither they go in elevators to the top floor to go through the first separator. The latter is composed of sifts and large tin rollers that separate and size the oats. One is surprised to see the amount of rubbish that here leaves the oats and goes to the bottom floor to be used as feed. The good oats go into large automatic steam kilns, where they are dried by heat from 5000 feet of piping carrying steam. There are eight floors to the kiln and by the time the oats are out they are pretty warm. These kilns are the greatest improvements in the mill, the oats being turned over and over by a revolving van instead of by millers, who formerly did the work by hand. The oats then go up again to receive another cleaning, after which they return to the ground floor through several sifts to the stones, where the hulls are taken off. Back they go to the third story to be polished and then down again to another stone. They go up and down six times before they are ground, so that by the time they get into the grinder they are clean and bright. After they have been ground, which process takes place on the lower floor, they proceed again to the top story, where the meal is sifted into the meal room. The dust and refuse that is used for chop, feed, etc., falls into another room from the whirlwind dust collectors that gather the dust and other matter not used in oatmeal, while the oats are pursuing their course from the kiln to the bags. The other articles made by the mill go through the same process, but are handled by different machines. The oatmeal made yesterday looked splendid, being as white and fine as any imported, and there is now no reason why all the goods of the kind used in the Province should not come out of the National Mills.

The rolled oats turned out by the mill this morning were the first made in British Columbia, in fact they are something new for the breakfast table. They have to go through a steaming process.

The oats at present being used came from the lower Fraser, and the company expect that they will be able to keep the mill going with British Columbia grains. This year, however, some oats will have to be imported, as the late rains did a great deal of damage to the crops.

In connection with the mill is a wharf where steamers will unload the grain for the mill and take away its output. There is also a large brick warehouse near the mill which will hold 500 tons of grain. Everything has been done to make the handling of goods easy and the mill ranks with the best on the continent.

Aunty's Advice.

BEHRING SEA SEALING.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THIS IMPORTANT INDUSTRY.

What the "London Times" Says About the Matter—Interesting Sketch by a Local Correspondent of That Paper—Wonderful Growth of the Industry.

In the year 1887 a fleet of 21 vessels cleared from the port of Victoria, B.C., for a sealing voyage in the North Pacific and Behring Sea, the clearance being issued at the Custom House at Victoria. Of this fleet five were seized by the United States cutter Richard Rush (Capt. Sheppard). Four of them were sealing at the time over 50 miles from the nearest land. The fifth, the W. P. Sayward, was about 40 miles off the land, but she had not been sealing, and had not taken a single seal in the waters of Behring Sea. The masters of the first four were placed on trial and were found guilty of illegal sealing, and the vessels were confiscated. The W. P. Sayward's master entered a demurrer, and that vessel was released under $5,500 bonds, and returned to Victoria in the autumn of 1887. In 1888 22 vessels cleared at Victoria for Behring Sea, and none of them were seized by the United States officials. The schooner Arannah, however, was seized by the Russian steamer Alexander II. on the first of July. The Arannah was at the time close to the Copper Islands, which are Russian territory, and her boats were sailing within the three mile limit. None of the other vessels violated the law, and no trouble was experienced. The catch that year was about 28,000 skins.

In 1889 a fleet of 24 vessels of a value of $200,500, and employing 637 men, cleared from Victoria for Behring sea. The United States revenue cutter Rush spoke the schooner Triumph on the 11th July and warned her master to leave the sea. The Triumph was at that time 70 miles from the nearest land, but her master, Daniel McLean, left the sea, and reached Victoria on the 28th July. The schooners Black Diamond, Minnie, Pathfinder and Lily were seized and the skins taken away, together with the arms and sealing gear. An officer was placed in charge, and they were ordered to proceed to Sitka. Instead of this, however, all the schooners laid their courses for Victoria, arriving their in due time, their season's catch ruined. The schooner Minnie, however, was kept in the sea, and with rough spears fashioned aboard the vessel, a catch of 500 seals was made, and some prophet accrued to the ship. In the year 1890 a fleet of 28 schooners cleared at the Victoria Custom House, and all peacefully prosecuted their business of seal hunting along the coast and Behring Sea. No seizures were made and no annoyance was given to the seal hunters by the United States revenue cutters. In consequence of this good catches were made. This fleet with its outfit was valued at the Custom House at $265,985 and gave employment to 678 men. Those engaged in the business were of the opinion that protection would be afforded them by the British Government and, as no attempt at molestation had been made by the United States officials it was thought that the claim of the United States to the open sea waters known as the Behring Sea had been abandoned. In consequence of this, extensive preparations were made for the season of 1891. The total catch of 1890 had been as follows: On the Southern, or coast trip, 4650; on the summer, or off Vancouver Island trip, 16,732; on the Northern, or Behring Sea trip, 18,165; making a grand total of 39,547 seals. The skins of these animals brought in the respectable sum of $498,728. This money was mainly expended in Victoria, and contributed largely towards building up and increasing her industries and business. To show the wonderful increase of the business of sealing, it might be mentioned that the number of skins taken in 1889 was 35,310; prices, however, ruled lower that year and the total price obtained was but $247,170. The year 1891 saw a great and valuable addition to the Victoria sealing fleet, and no fewer than 49 vessels cleared at the Custom House for sealing cruises in the North Pacific Ocean and Behring Sea. This fleet represented an outlay of $424,150, and employment was given to 1082 men. The catches for the early part of the spring were not large, owing to rough and heavy gales, but everybody hoped that the summer and Behring Sea catches would show better results. When the news reached Victoria that the British had agreed to a close season for seals considerable consternation was caused, and those whose all was invested in the enterprise were uneasy, but, knowing the well known fairness of Great Britain in all matters of equity, an indemnity was relied on. However, the owners did not altogether trust the quietness of the United States Government, and, to guard against loss by seizures, the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company's steamer Danube was chartered to go to the sea and bring down to Victoria the skins taken up to June 25, as stated above. The British schooners engaged in the seal fishing business have often been stigmatized as "pirates" and "poachers;" it has been asserted by the American press that it has been a common thing for Victoria schooners to raid the seal rookeries on the Pribyloff Islands. Such an accusation as this is manifestly very unjust, for the most careful enquiry fails to elicit any proof that a British vessel ever was found within the legal three-mile limit of the shore of the Islands, to say nothing of raids. Had such raids been made there is no doubt that it would have been known, for among so many men as go to make up the crew of a sealer, one or more would be sure to tell of the adventure. Sailors are given to their cups, and, had any such raids been made, the story would have been sure to be told in the dram shops at Victoria. There have indeed been raids, but in every case the offender has been of a country not British. One of the most notorious raiders was the German schooner Adele, Capt. Hansen, which was wrecked off Queen Charlotte Islands in May of this year. This schooner, which was owned by a German firm of Yokohama, Japan, for years committed raids on the seal rookeries of Pribyloff Islands. Her success was variable; sometimes good catches rewarded her illegal acts, sometimes very little luck attended her ventures. The Adele was usually cleared from Victoria for Yokohama early in the autumn, but instead of going to Yokohama she would proceed to Behring Sea and prosecute her work, returning to Victoria, where her captain would report to the Customs that, by reason of heavy weather, he had been unable to reach Yokohama, and had been forced to return to Victoria again. This tale did its duty for a time, although it was currently known that the raids had been made, and the American papers, which were kept well informed of the Adele's movements, would in no measured terms criticise the matter, and blame all the Victoria sealers for the illegal actions of a foreign vessel whose captain used a British port to further his nefarious schemes. Last autumn, however, when the schooner Adele returned from her annual trip, Collector Milne, hearing these reports of a raid, placed the captain and crew under a severe cross-examination, with the result that a fine of nearly $1000 was imposed on Capt. Hansen for making a false affidavit in clearing his vessel for Yokohama, when he manifestly intended to go to Behring Sea, and did go there, in spite of his clearance for another place. Other vessels have also been known to raid the islands, among them the Ocean Spray, Capt. Littlejohn, an American vessel, hailing from San Francisco, and the schooner Mollie Adams, also an American vessel. Other American vessels have been suspected of raiding, but no conclusive evidence is at hand to show that they did. No one instance is on record of a British schooner having done any raiding, and it is safe to assert that in no way have the Victorian vessels broken the law, in spite of the unjust charges of "poaching" preferred against them by the American press.

WAKEMAN'S WANDERINGS

THE OLD HOME OF THE CATESBYS.

An Interesting Description of the Sunny, Slumbrous Nook in Northamptonshire, Where the Famous "Guy Fawkes' Gunpowder Plot" Was Concocted.

[Copyright, 1891, by Edgar L. Wakeman.]

ASHBY ST. LEDGERS, Sept. 21.—One feels quite a prideful thrill of original discovery if he can hit upon object or place in all Europe where the great American globe trotter has not already come; took a hasty glance; photographed everybody and everything with a snap camera or upon his majestic memory; chipped off a piece of the object or shrine for his collection; made half a dozen notes with a stylographic pen for future reference; cut his name and the date of his visit upon any available woodwork about the spot, or otherwise left his mark; and then with a "biff!" and "zip!" projected himself meteorically through space to the next pleasing or hideous object of interest.

I have found one spot in Great Britain where there is at least no local record of the species. The fact is a noteworthy one and the place itself possesses extraordinary interest. It is called Ashby St. Ledgers. To be very definite regarding a locality so distinctive for its so far quite unknown beauties and interest, it is but a tiny "village four miles north from Daventry, sixteen from Northampton, in the middivision of the county of Northampton, hundred of Fawsley, petty sessional division union and county court district of Daventry, rural deanery of Daventry, archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough."

The taxgatherers of the crown have thus minutely located the village and parish, and to make it perfectly accessible to those who "do" Ireland, Scotland and England in one week or less it should be added that Ashby St. Ledgers is but fifteen minutes' walk westward from Wilton station, on the main line of the London and Northwestern railway from London to the noted school town of Rugby, and that the most famous conspiracy in English history, popularly known as "Guy Fawkes' Gunpowder Plot," was concocted within the sunny, slumberous precincts of its now crumbling and ivy covered walls.

To the casual student of history the chief incidents of the plot may properly be recalled. Stripped of their usual bigoted verbiage, it was a plan originated by Sir Robert Catesby, lord of this very manor, and other malcontents, including Thomas Percy, Christopher and John Wright, Thomas and Robert Winter, one Bates, and their braver tool, Guido (or Guy) Faux (or Fawkes), representing the enemies of James I, then recently elevated to the throne under the union of the English and Scottish crowns, and shortly thereafter proclaimed king of Great Britain—to remove an obnoxious government in the concrete, king, lords and commons, at a single explosion of gunpowder, instead of by a great and protracted waste of gunpowder through prolonged and cruel civil war, through which an entire nation is often all but destroyed.

This was probably the conspirators' considerate and pleasant view of the matter. They rented a fine cellar immediately under parliament house and succeeded in concealing within it thirty barrels and four hogsheads of gunpowder, "covered with billets and faggots of wood, great iron bars, stones," etc., besides young and ambitious Mr. Fawkes, "wrapped in a cloak and booted and spurred," and provided with "a dark lanthorn and a tinder boxe with which to set off the touchwood," which, communicating with the thirty barrels and four hogsheads of gunpowder, at the instant of the king's convening parliament, Nov. 5, 1605, was expected to give immediate relief to the political situation.

However, by means of an anonymous letter to Lord Monteagle, whom some one of the conspirators desired to save, the plot was discovered, young Mr. Fawkes, whom the pictures represent as having for some time neglected his hair and beard, was dragged out of his mysterious surroundings, spread upon a convenient rack, inducing a confession, and shortly after hung; while Percy, Catesby, Winter and the two Wrights were chased from this place through Warwickshire to Holbeach, in Staffordshire, where they were all slain, fighting to the death, except Winter. He was captured alive, to die on the gallows; and a sufficient number of others, directly or suppositiously connected with this mad effort to proclaim the young Princess Elizabeth queen in place of James, to appease the most fastidious and exacting religio-political feeling of the time, and cause succeeding generations to were put to death in the Old Palace yard at Westminster and at St. Paul's.

The manor of St. Ledgers, the former home of the arch conspirator, Sir Robert Catesby, is one of the most ancient in Britain. It possesses an eventful history. I am indebted for its romantic narrative to my host, Major H. P. Senhouse, its present proprietor and lord of the manor. Aside from its peculiar interest, in view of St. Ledgers' individual historic associations, it is most curious and fascinating as illustrative of the extraordinary recorded, not traditional, age of innumerable English estates, their frequent strange vicissitudes, and the almost purely historic volumes which might be written upon almost any single piece of entailed manorial property in England.

The manor was granted by William the Conqueror to Hugh de Grentmasnil over 800 years ago. At the time "Domesday Book," the first tax book of England, was prepared (1080-6), this Hugh de Grentmasnil held four "hides" of land in Ashby. There were eight acres of meadow, and the whole was then valued at sixty shillings. This Hugh accompanied the conqueror on his expedition to England and was rewarded for his services with upward of 100 manors in different counties, twenty of which lay in Northamptonshire. He was associated with Odo, bishop of Bayeaux, and William Fitz-Osborn in executing the high office of justiciary of England two years after the conquest, and died in 1094, six days after he had assumed a religious habit.

He was succeeded by his son Robert, from whom the estate descended in 1129 to Ivo de Grentmasnil, his eldest surviving brother and heir. This Ivo joined the confederacy in support of Robert, duke of Normandy in the reign of Henry I, but the enterprise failing, and being heavily fined for his delinquency, he applied for protection to Robert, earl of Mellent, one of the king's chief counselors, at whose suggestion he undertook a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. For this purpose the earl loaned him 300 marks, or about £333, for which he mortgaged to him all his possessions in England, by way of security, for fifteen years, on condition that it should be restored to his son Ivo, whom the earl engaged on oath should be married to his own niece, the daughter of the Earl of Warwick. The king ratified his agreement, but Ivo, the father, dying on his pilgrimage, the son was deprived of both his wife and his inheritance.

Another Hugh de Grentmasnil, successor of the young Ivo, appears to have subsequently recovered his patrimony, which descended to his daughter, Petronilla, who, marrying Robert Blanchmaines, earl of Leicester, the grandson of Robert, earl of Mellent, his possessions were all transferred into that family.

In the reign of Henry II, Ashby contained four "hides" of the fee of the Earl of Leicester, and subsequently became parcel of the duchy of Lancaster. From the reign of King John to the latter part of the reign of Edward III, this lordship was in the hands of the family De Crawford, when Emma, daughter of Robert de Crawford, carried it in marriage to John de Catesby, of Ladbroke, in Warwickshire.

Sir William Catesby, a grandson of John, was one of the three favorites who ruled England under Richard III, the others being Sir Richard Radcliffe and Viscount Lovell, giving rise to the memorable distich:

The rat, the cat and Lovell our dog.
Rule all England under the hog—

The allusion to the "hog" referring to King Richard having adopted a boar as one of the heraldic supporters upon his regal escutcheon. For this poetical libel Collingbourne, its author, was expeditiously "hanged, headed and quartered" on Tower Hill, London.

Sir William Catesby obtained grants of various forfeited manors and lucrative wardships; and attending King Richard in his last expedition against the Earl of Richmond, he was taken prisoner in Bosworth Field, fighting valiantly for his master, and three days after was beheaded at Leicester. His lands were escheated to the crown and granted to Sir James Blount, but were restored by act of parliament to his son George in 1496. George Catesby, Esq., was succeeded by his son William, a minor, who, dying without issue, the estates descended to his youngest brother, Richard, who was member from Warwickshire in the famous parliament which proved so destructive to the English monasteries.

Sir William Catesby, grandson and successor of Richard, was cited with others before the infamous court of star chamber in 1581, charged with harboring Jesuits and being present at a secret celebration of the mass, of which offenses they were convicted. Sir Robert Catesby, his son and successor, who originated the gunpowder plot on these grounds, lived, until pursued and shot to death at Holbeach, Staffordshire, in 1605, in this picturesque old manor house.

Catesby's estates having been confiscated by the crown, the lordship and advowson of the manor were granted, in 1611, to Sir William Irving in fee. They were subsequently sold by Irving to Brian Panson and Ann, his wife, with whose descendants they continued until 1703, when they were purchased by Joseph Ashby, Esq., and from him they descended to the late Lady Senhouse, who, dying in 1850, left the property to her only surviving child, Captain William Senhouse, a bachelor and a confirmed woman hater. On his decease, in 1884, Major Humphrey Pockington Senhouse was called from his estates in Cumberland to act as executor, and found to his surprise that the splendid old property had been devised to him. This is a long "search" or "abstract of title," as the real estate lawyers would call it. But what a grand historic sweep it has! What a host of men in armor and "ladyes faire" it marshals from the dim and knightly days! What sacred pilgrimages, bloody wars, desperate and victorious dynasties, kingly pageants and horrid plots it summons for solemn review, and how glorious a historic romance could be wrought within Ashby St. Ledgers' grim and ghostly old walls!

Approaching the place along the highway from the southwest, you suddenly come upon the daintiest and most flower spangled village in England. It is a tiny collection of dependencies upon the manor, but there can nowhere else be found such flower embowered homes. Just at the northern edge of this, the whole forming a striking background to the side broidery of one of the finest wide, high overarchings of ancient ash trees I have ever seen, first appears a huge wall, high, thick, ivy hung and mossy. Surmounting this is a wonderfully picturesque old gatehouse with two stories of chambers and an attic—the veritable meeting place of the conspirators—over a capacious archway, which formed the ancient sole entrance to the domain, in the good old days there also being effigies of saints at the archway sides and convenient niches in which mendicant travelers could sit and appeal to passers for alms. Behind this are other venerable outbuildings, half a thousand years old and in perfect mass. To the right and higher shows a grim, square Norman tower and the mossy roof of the parish church, whose "living" is within the gift of the lord of the manor. Behind and above all are the many massive gables of this most splendidly fantastic manor house within the England midland shires.

The church itself is a study in ancient English ecclesiastical architecture, is extraordinarily rich in monuments and brasses, and possesses many evidences of having been largely restored and beautified by John de Catesby about 1412. Its age, however, dates from many hundred years before that time. Many monuments to the Catesbys are found in the chancel which escaped destruction, from the place being so sequestered a one, at the time of the terrible public outburst against the fatal treason of Robert Catesby. But a portion of its floors are covered with flags, a suggestion of extraordinary antiquity, as well of the beautiful village "rushbearing" processionals, which were certain to have annually been seen within it; its traditional south porch is as quaint a study as that of ancient Grasmere church in Westmoreland, and as from time immemorial has been the custom with English parish churches under memorial and demesne beneflces, a private way leads to the hall of the lord of the manor.

At Ashby St. Ledgers it passes through the ancient courtyard wall and winds across a noble terraced lawn and garden. At the rear of these, marking the boundary of the highway, is a majestic line of ash trees. Half way between the manor house and these stands the historic tulip tree of St. Ledgers, indeed, if not of England. Its girth at four feet from the ground is 16 feet and 3 inches.

The manor house is believed to be nearly 700 years old. Its south and west fronts certainly date from the time of Edward III. They retain their original character, and are finished with gables and an open parapet. The east front is modernized. In the hall of the most ancient portion every oak panel bears a now almost indistinguishable painting of a head or an armorial device. Many portraits of the Catesbys are still intact. The entire interior is a labyrinth of wainscoting, curious sunken and secret repositories, dark old hallways, wondrously carved chimney pieces and fantastic stairways, balustrades and landings. It is believed that the cellars contain walled up secret passages to distant places of exit, and in one I found a huge stone altar, where formerly Christian England compelled the pious to worship for fear of the gallows of Tower Hill.

FIVE DEAD.

OWINGSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—A party of whitecaps attacked the residence of Geo. Culp last Tuesday night. As a result James and Geo. Howard were instantly killed, and half a dozen others were wounded, one of whom, Geo. Jones, has since died. A sister of the Howards was ill and the shock killed her. Yesterday an infant to which she gave birth a few months prior to her death also died, making five deaths in all. It is quite certain one or two more of the wounded will die. The true story of the affair has just come out. A young girl named Delia Carpenter was the innocent cause of the tragedy. Mr. See had adopted the girl. The Culps and Rebecca Carpenter and their confederates were incensed at this, as was also Cynthia Jones, who, it is claimed, said she had bought the girl and was to pay $250 for her. Rebecca Carpenter declared she would kill the girl if she remained with the See family. There was a great deal of excitement over it, and somebody served a Whitecap notice on the Culps, ordering them to leave in 30 days under penalty of death. The Culps remained, and the neighborhood talked with more freedom than prudence. So matters continued until the fatal culmination. Some time ago Rebecca Carpenter, an aunt of the girl, came to the house of Prosner See and asked him to take the girl and keep her, as the Carpenters were not able. See promised to take the girl on trial. Not long after this Mollie Culp, Susie Culp and Rebecca Carpenter went to See's house in the absence of the family, stole the girl and secreted her at the house of George Culp. It came to the ears of Mrs. See that the persons who had the girl in charge intended to take her to Mount Sterling and put her in the hands of Cyntnia Jones, a notorious character. In the meantime the girl ran away from the Culps, came to the house of See and piteously begged him to keep her as she said she was afraid of her life. This led to the attack on Culp's house and the deaths of five or more persons.

THE OAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—With regard to a return race with Dutch, Peterson says that he will not row anyone for three months, as he has been in training all the year and is not well. He needs a rest till the spring, and will then be open to row Dutch or anyone else four or five miles. Having beaten the Australian his favorite distance of three miles, Peterson does not care particularly to row that course again, though he thinks he can surely defeat him at anything over three miles. He will row the Australian four or five miles with a turn for anything from $2500 to $6000 aside in three months. Peterson would like to make a match with Hanlan, to be rowed early in the spring.

A NANAIMO MATCH.

The quoit match between Campbell and Bowalter, at the Half Way House, on Saturday, turned out to be quite interesting, and a large number witnessed it. Campbell gave Bowalter five points, but it was soon apparent he had made a mistake, as the latter appeared to have his own way all through the play, and finally won the contest with 61 points to Campbell's 29. The stakes were $250 a side.

A RINGER AT WESTMINSTER.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 20.—The protest entered against runner Samson, who won the amateur 150 yards race at the celebration sports here, has been sustained. Samson is one of the greatest professional runners on the continent. The prize has, therefore, been awarded to D. Smith, of Vancouver.
